

POPULAR FREE LECTURES.

Arrangements Made for the Season's Second Course.

Two Young Ladies Added to the List of Able Speakers.

The courses of free evening lectures provided for by legislative enactment at the suggestion and on the instance of THE EVENING WORLD are proving most popular with the masses.

Prof. Henry M. Leitzinger, who so ably conducted the free lectures for the Board of Education, has prepared the second course of lectures for the present season. The list of distinguished lecturers has been augmented by the addition of two ladies—Misses Cecilia Gohl and Isabel P. Hagwood. The former takes for her subject: "Home Life in Sweden," while Miss Hagwood speaks of "Life in Russia."

The attendance during the first course this season was invariably excellent, and a remarkable thing about the audiences was the preponderance of women. The illustrated lectures are the most popular, although all the lecturers on the list are rewarded by patient attention. The keen interest taken in some of the deeply scientific discourses gives evidence of the high intellectual taste of the general public.

The lectures are held in the following school buildings: No. 3, corner of Grove and Hudson streets; No. 15, at 728 Fifth street; No. 18, at 121 East Fifty-first street; No. 23, at 30 and 38 City Hall place; No. 33, at 418 West Twenty-eighth street; No. 31, at 523 West Forty-fourth street; No. 82, at the corner of Third street and First avenue; No. 83, at 210 East One Hundred and Tenth street; and at the Institute, corner of East Broadway and Jefferson street.

The second course is to begin on Jan. 18 and will close on March 1. Two lectures being given every week on Mondays and Thursdays at eight o'clock. The lectures and their subjects are as follows:

Prof. Wm. H. Goodyear—"Masterpieces of Ancient and Modern Sculpture."

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

A Poor Card of Runners for the Hilltop Track To-Day.

The Heavy Track Probably the Cause of the Light Entries.

The card at Guttenberg to-day is a poor one. The fields are small and the quality of the entries rather poor.

This is no doubt due to the weather and the condition of the track, which prohibits owners of good horses from sending in their entries. However, poor horses sometimes make the best races, and this may be the case to-day.

The track will be very heavy. The entries for the several events are as follows:

First Race—Purse $200, for beaten horses; six and a half furlongs.

Second Race—Purse $200, for three-year-olds; five furlongs.

Third Race—Purse $200, for maidens; selling; five furlongs.

Fourth Race—Purse $200, for maidens; selling; five furlongs.

Fifth Race—Purse $200, for three-year-olds; five furlongs.

HUNT SUCCEEDS HIMSELF.

Re-elected President of the School Board by Eleven Votes.

Prof. John L. N. Hunt has been re-elected President of the Board of Education, and the element in that body which has been pleased to denigrate itself "progressive" is, in consequence, cast down.

Commissioner Adolph L. Sanger was the candidate of the Progressists, and he had confidently counted on the support of nine of the ten members, as well as that of Messrs. Croun, Knox and Weinman, the Commissioners appointed by Mayor Grant last November.

These gentlemen all voted for the re-election of President Hunt, however, and their action gave him just the eleven votes necessary for a choice.

During the hot canvass there was much talk of political interference, and there was some grumbling this morning and a suggestion that Messrs. Croun, Knox and Weinman (the two latter members of the Board) had been appointed by Mayor Grant with the understanding that they would vote for President Hunt. The Mayor had interfered, it was said, because President Hunt had supported him when Mr. Grant was attacked by Senator Fassett last Fall.

The Mayor's friends laugh at this suggestion, and point to the fact that the one who strove to elect Hunt last year was the Board—Commissioner Strauss—supported Sanger.

Looking for a Job.

The Aftable Clerk Didn't Think the Stranger Wounded His.

A good story is told on Charles E. Adams, assistant superintendent of the document room, says the Washington Post.

He was sitting in his office when a Western stranger entered and inquired if there was such a thing as a printed list of the House employees.

"Looking for an office, eh?" asked Mr. Adams, as he handed over the document.

"Yes, seems as if I'm entitled to something," remarked the applicant as he took the proffered official roll and started off.

"Well, select what you want and come back and let me know, and I'll see what I can do for you," replied Adams, as the stranger departed.

Half an hour later, after Adams had forgotten all about the incident, he was tapped on the shoulder, and, turning around, saw the stranger coming back.

"I've been studying about spiders, and here is a good opportunity for observing their habits."

As if encouraged by this championship, Belshazzar descended from the dictionary and crawled slowly over the open page of an algebra, as if trying to make out what it was.

From this he went over to the edge of the bottle suspension immediately after the same critical air, and at last settled on a physical geography as most worthy of his attention.

Every now and then he would refresh himself with a drink out of Aleck's ink bottle.

All at once he missed him, and as he had last been seen drinking from the bottle, he was naturally suspicious.

He was rescued and placed on a scrap of waste paper, with injunctions to remain there until dry, but this he had no intention of doing.

On the contrary, he was determined to make a dash for it, and he was rescued and placed on a scrap of waste paper, with injunctions to remain there until dry, but this he had no intention of doing.

PRANKS OF A PET SPIDER.

There would be one moment of doubt as to what the "bronce" was going to do; now and then it might seem for a few seconds as if a really mild-mannered steed had been sent to the post by some of the quartermaster's department.

But this doubt never lasted very long. The genuine "bronce" can always be recognized by the way he looks at the man that makes up his mind to "buck" he sits out on his work with out delay and with a vim that means business.

There were many horses arriving in a "bunch" there would be lots of fun. The men would mount, and amid the encouraging shouts and cheers of the crowd would begin the task of subjugation.

The bronco nearly always looked around and up at his rider with an expression that was menacing; then he would reach his back, get into four feet bunched together and await developments.

If the rider foolishly listened to the suggestions of his critics he would always mistake this temporary paroxysm of hostility for fear or lack of spirit. Arrah, buck! buck! over his knees, inter exclaim, "some foolish bystander would call out."

No sooner did the rider heed this evil advice and strike the bronco's flank with his heels than the air would be filled with a revolving mass of main and tail flying hoops, while the man would also be sent into the sand and plow it up with his chin.

Smart Pelican, That.

It Devoured a String of Fish While Undergoing Capture.

A California paper relates the following fish story.

Sunday there was a great crowd of fishermen on the wharf hauling in yellow-tails and mackerel. During the height of the sport an immense pelican, measuring fully six feet from tip to tip of wings, flew down so low over the wharf that one of the boys seized him by the wing.

In the other hand the boy held a string of eight mackerels, and it was but a moment for the pelican to grab the fish and gobble up the lot at one gulp.

Others then seized the bird, but the fish were gone. The boy was concerned, and he was finally allowed to depart. This is not a fish story, but a pelican story, and entirely truthful.

JIMMY'S COMPOSITION.

He Tells What He Knows on the Subject of Ante.

In a public school in one of the New England States the teacher makes a practice of requiring "natural history composition" from her pupils, says the Youth's Companion.

She gives them as a subject something with which they are familiar, and tells them to write all they know about it. In this way she teaches them English orthography and natural history all at once.

Not long ago she asked Jimmy, one of her bright boys, if he knew anything about ante; and when he said that he did she told him to write a composition about them. Here is the result of his effort:

"ANTE.

"There are many kinds of Ante My aunt Mary Jane is one of these kinds. She is really good natured and when she comes to see my Mother she brings me five cents worth of pennies and tells me why James you've grown but when I go and see her she like to give me a box of Carpit without cleaning my boots she is orly mad.
